

Victoria is a dynamic professional speaker, trainer and public seminar leader who has helped thousands of managers and their teams throughout Australia and New Zealand deal with the enormous variety of problems and challenges facing them in the workplace every single day.

Her life as a trainer started 31 years ago as an instructor in the Australian Army Reserve. During the following 23 years, as a Training Subject Master, Victoria trained over 7,000 soldiers and officers in drill, weapons and theory and was promoted to the rank of Warrant Officer.

The combination of her military skills, her accreditations: Cert IV in Training & Assessment (University of Victoria), Psychosomatic Therapy and Neuro Linguistic Programming (NLP) plus over eight years experience in presenting a wide variety of topics to a diverse group of industries has given Victoria a unique training style as well as valuable insights into people's behaviour.

She is passionate about leadership and communication skills and understands the value of having fun in training sessions.
